A Relation of the Earthquakes that happen'd in August last at Manosque in Provence. Taken out of the Paris Mercure Galant for September 1708.

THE first of these Earthquakes, which is look'd upon to have been the most violent, happen'd on the 14th of August at half an hour past 6 in the Morning. 'Twas felt differently according to the different Situations of the Ground. In some Places was heard a Noise like the Repetition of the Report of several Cannon; in others a kind of Bellowing, and in others a Grumbling as it were of distant Thunder. Some Persons who were in the Fields thought they saw the Town heav'd up into the Air, and then suddenly thrown down again; and indeed it was so terribly shaken, as well as all the Country round it, that not a House is to be seen unmark'd by the Hand of the Almighty: Some Houses are half thrown down, and others cleft from the Top to the very bottom of their Foundations: The Castle of the Antient Counts of Forcalquier, which belongs at present to the Order of Malta; and which has been always look'd upon to be as strong as a Rock, because of the solidity and thickness of its Walls and Foundations, threatens a Fall on all sides. Not a Wall, nor Tower, nor Vault, but what has receiv'd some Damage. The strongest Churches, as those of St. Saviour and of our Lady, have far'd in like manner: The Convent of the Observantins is render'd uninhabitable; the Walls of the Town are thrown down in several Places, and the Earth gapes in others; Rocks are rent; and what seems most surprising is a Rock which stands a quarter of a League from the Town, and which having open'd it self, has discover'd several Springs of Water, some Sulphurous, others fresh. Several Nurles lost their Milk; divers Persons were struck Sick, some of which are become almost Stupid, and others have quite lost their Senses: In the very Cattle is perceiv'd some change. From the 14th to the 20th several Shogs were felt every Day; but so gentle, that they were scarcely regarded; insomuch that the Danger was believ'd to be all over, and every one was beginning to repair his House; when on the 20th three Earthquakes happen'd, the last of them at 2 in the Afternoon, with Noises more violent and dreadful than those of the 14th: and which resounded so loud in the Air and in Subterranean places, that all believ'd the End of the World was come. The Town was intirely deserted in less than a quarter of an Hour: The Monks and Nuns abandon'd their Convents; and 7 or 8000 Souls who crowded out of the Town, thinking only to fly from Death, found themselves all at once without Meat or Drink, nor durst return back to get any: Which compell'd them to have recourse to the Neighbouring Towns and Villages; where some Families remain'd, while others lay in the Fields in Places most remote from Buildings: Several Shogs were felt every Day from the 20th to the 30th, and some of them very violent. The Inhabitants who took up their Abode in the Fields, suffer'd very much by the Rains that fell the 27th and 28th, which made several more of them retire to the Neighbouring Villages. Nor one single Person was kill'd under the Ruins of this Town, and but a few were wounded. The Shogs were felt 7 of 8 Leagues round: The Villages of Corberes, St. Tulle, and Monfaron, which lie not above two Leagues from Manosque, have receiv'd some Damage; and that of Peyrevert, which is scarce a League distant from Manosque, has suffer'd as much as that Town it self.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Nov. 10.

Madrid, Oct. 23. The last Advices from the Army in Catalonia, are, that the Duke of Orleans had order'd a Detachment of 7 Battalions to march towards Valencia; and that they set forward the 6th of this Month, under the Command of Don Francisco Caetano Lieutenant General, and M. de Choiseul Major General. The 13th his Royal Highness began to distribute the Troops into Winter-Quarters. They write from Lerida, that Lieutenant Colonel Don Joseph Vallejo was arriv'd there with 350 Horse; and that being inform'd the Enemy's Parties made continual Excursions to the Places situate on the Segra and on the Cinca, as far as Mequinenza, he march'd out with 300 Horse to look for them. He met one of their Parties commanded by the Lieutenant Colonel of the Regiment of Tobias; he defeated them, took the Lieutenant Colonel with 6 other Officers and 20 Soldiers, and kill'd a great Number.

Madrid, Oct. 23. Don Diego de Avila, who was Governor of the Castle of Port Mahon, with a few Spaniards who chose to come from thence with him, has been set ashore at Carragera. The King shew'd very great Concern when he was inform'd of the Loss of that Port with the Island of Minorca, and has sent order for the said Governour to be brought Prisoner hither; designing to have his Conduct severely examin'd; the whole Court, as well as his Majesty, being of Opinion that he did not do his Duty in the Defence of a Place of so great Strength and Importance, garrison'd with 1000 Men. The Possession of the Harbour of Mahon renders the Allies Masters of the Mediterranean; and will give them an Opportunity to intercept the Trade from Toulon and Marleilles to the Levant and to the West Indies. The Prince of Darmstadt continues in the Conca de Tren, with much the same Number of Troops as the Count d'Estaing has there; so that 'tis much doubted whether the latter will be able to secure Winter Quarters in that Part of the Country. The Attack of the Castle of Venasque being so long deferr'd, it begins to be apprehended that Enterprize will not have Effect; and unless the County of Ribagorza can be reduc'd to Obedience, our Troops must take their Winter Quarters in Arragon and Valencia; which will be to the great Dissatisfaction of the Inhabitants of those Provinces. The Chevalier d'Hasfelt, notwithstanding all things are ready for the Siege of Denia, has not yet approach'd that Place. When the Duke of Orleans has made an End of disposing his Forces into Winter Quarters, he will make a Tour to Valencia before he comes to Court; and after a short Stay here, he will go to the Court of France.

Paris, Nov. 5. By the last Advices from the Duke of Orleans we conjecture that he cannot take Winter Quarters for his Troops in the County of Ribagorza, because he has detach'd several Regiments to Valencia to winter there. In the meantime the Parties of the Miquelets are very numerous on the Segra and the Cinca. His Royal Highness has made a very indifferent Conclusion of a Campaign, which he began with much seeming Vigour: And our Courtiers cannot forbear doing that Justice to General Count Staremberg, as to own his Conduct this Campaign shews him to have a Genius much Superior to his Royal Highness; and that he is so much Master of his Profession, as to know how with inferior Force to ‘Seal the Ground from under an Enemy's Feet. The Duke of Orleans is expected here to solicit an Augmentation of Troops: And it seems we are not to reckon any where upon the Conduct of our Generals or the Goodness of our Forces, but on a great Superiority of Numbers; for the Service in Spain is now said at Court to require no less a Reinforcement than 12000 Men.
